How easy would it be for you to show a friend that digital picture on your computer? Probably not that difficult. Now try showing that same picture to a whole family. Not as easy.

With the increased popularity of digital imaging people are capturing more images and movies than before. The only problem is trying to show off your great pictures. Scrunching your family members around a little computer monitor will not be enjoyable for anyone. The solution is X10's Showtime.

The Showtime allows you to transmit your digital images and movies wirelessly from your computer to virtually any TV. The advantage to a Showtime is the freedom it allows you to show images and movies in the most comfortable place of your home; around the TV where you have big comfy sofas and plenty of room.

The Showtime comes with a digital camera and a remote control to navigate your images without having to be near your computer. Additionally, you can zoom in on images and print or email the images right from the sofa. The Showtime is available with or without the camera.

Features:

- PC must have a USB port
- Max resolution is 2048 x 1536
- 2.4 GHz video transmitter
- Remote Control
